The Town of Paradise and the adjoining towns of Magalia and Concow, small communities east of the City of Chico nestled in the foothills in northern California, were virtually wiped out by a wildfire that started on November 8, 2018. This fire was the most devastating wildfire in California history. Tens of thousands of people fled for their lives, and there were 85 individuals who were unable to escape. In total, 153,336 acres were impacted by the fire with almost 14,000 residences, and over 500 businesses destroyed. Many more structures were also damaged. The past decade and beyond has demonstrated that wild-land fire knows no boundaries. Any of our homes, neighborhoods, businesses and communities can be affected by a similar apocalyptic disaster. As we pray for those who lost their lives, we have turned our attention to those who survived and are suffering. Our hearts go out to them as we ponder how we might, somehow, do something/anything that might soften their heartache and loss. Let's all share in the dream of rebuilding these devastated communities and help the fire victims as they take the long, painful steps to re-establish their lives.

When most of the young women on Paradise High School's Girl's Volleyball Team lost everything but the clothes on their backs in the fire, they were asked if they still wanted to go to the State Volleyball Semi-Final Championship Game. They voted to go, even as ill-equipped as they were. They ended up playing Forest Lake Christian School and lost. But the thing that they'll remember for the rest of their lives will be the outpouring of love and compassion that they experienced at the hands of their opponents. All of these young women were presented with new shoes, uniforms, pads and equipment bags - with their names and player numbers on them. In addition, each girl received $300 in gift cards, and an additional $10,000 was donated to help them during this time. All of us were taught a lesson.
